

Custom Software Development

1 Why Use Project Risk Consultants?

Do messy Excel spreadsheets kill your productivity? Is your database clunky and hard for users to learn? Are you stuck with off-the-shelf solutions that do not fit your needs?

2 Free Consultation

No two companies or projects are the same, however, they are usually confined to off-the-shelf software or databases that may not suit the needs of the team. Project Risk Consultants will provide a free consultation with a project manager and software architect to map out design needs as well as technical development specifications to streamline your processes.

3 Software Design and Coding

Project Risk Consultants believes the design and coding stages should be interactive so the product delivered is in alignment with the expectations of the customer, and additional areas of need are uncovered during the process. The feel, user interface, usability, and documentation are vital for your new software. No solution will be delivered, whether it is a large-scale collaborative database or a simple web application, until the product is ready to be used in a production environment and approved by the customer.

4 Installation and Support

A streamlined software solution is worthless without prompt and professional support. Project Risk Consultants can support your solution, add functionality, and even host your software, whether your need is a large-scale collaborative database or a simple web application.
